Objective: Decode STP strategies of 3 Global brands.
Brands Studied: We studied the STP strategies (Segmentation, Targeting, Positioning) of three global brands Uniqlo, Starbucks, and Samsung — during a visit to Ambience Mall, Delhi.

Introduction & Methodology

The visit helped us talk to staff, watch customer behavior, and understand how each brand uses pricing, products, and store design to show its market positioning.

- Field visit to Ambience Mall.
- Observed store layout, pricing, product range.
- Spoke with staff about customers & promotions.
- Noted customer footfall and buying patterns.
- Analyzed all findings using the STP framework.

Uniqlo (Fashion/Apparel)

Segmentation

- Based on lifestyle & income (not gender)
- Price range: ₹199 – ₹10,000 → budget to premium shoppers.

Targeting

- College students & young professionals (quality + affordability).
- Also appeals to families & working adults.

Positioning

- "LifeWear – Made for All".
- Everyday clothing → comfort, inclusivity, practicality.
- Over 350 product varieties (essentials > seasonal trends).

Core Value

- Everyday wear for diverse needs
- (simple, functional fashion).

Starbucks (Food & Beverage)

Segmentation

Demographic: Young adults, professionals (18+).
Psychographic: Social, lifestyle-driven, premium café experience seekers.
Behavioral: Frequent café visitors, aspirational consumption.

Targeting

Core: Urban youth & young professionals.
Occasional: Families & older groups (less frequent).
Income: Middle–high, willing to pay premium for ambience & experience.

Positioning

Core Idea: "Third Place" (beyond home & work – community + experience).

- Reflected in:

Store locations (malls, high-street roads).
Premium pricing + seasonal offers.
Cozy ambience & personalized service (LATTE model for complaints).
Customer loyalty via quarterly promotions.

Other Insights

Location choice decided by management, based on target footfall.
Payment: UPI ease, but card payments still higher.
Peak Season: Festive (Oct–Nov, Diwali footfall rise).
Values > Tagline: Emphasis on service & brand ethos.

Samsung (Electronics)

Segmentation

Demographic: Young people, working professionals, and high-income customers.
Psychographic: Like new technology, want modern lifestyle products, aim for premium quality.
Behavioral: Upgrade devices often, prefer trusted global brands.

Positioning

Core Idea: "Innovation for Everyone" advanced technology for all price levels.
Store Design: Modern, tech-focused look.
Products: Wide range – phones, wearables, TVs (basic to premium).
Pricing: Covers both entry-level and ultra-premium.
Communication: Highlights innovation, lifestyle fit, and global image.

Targeting

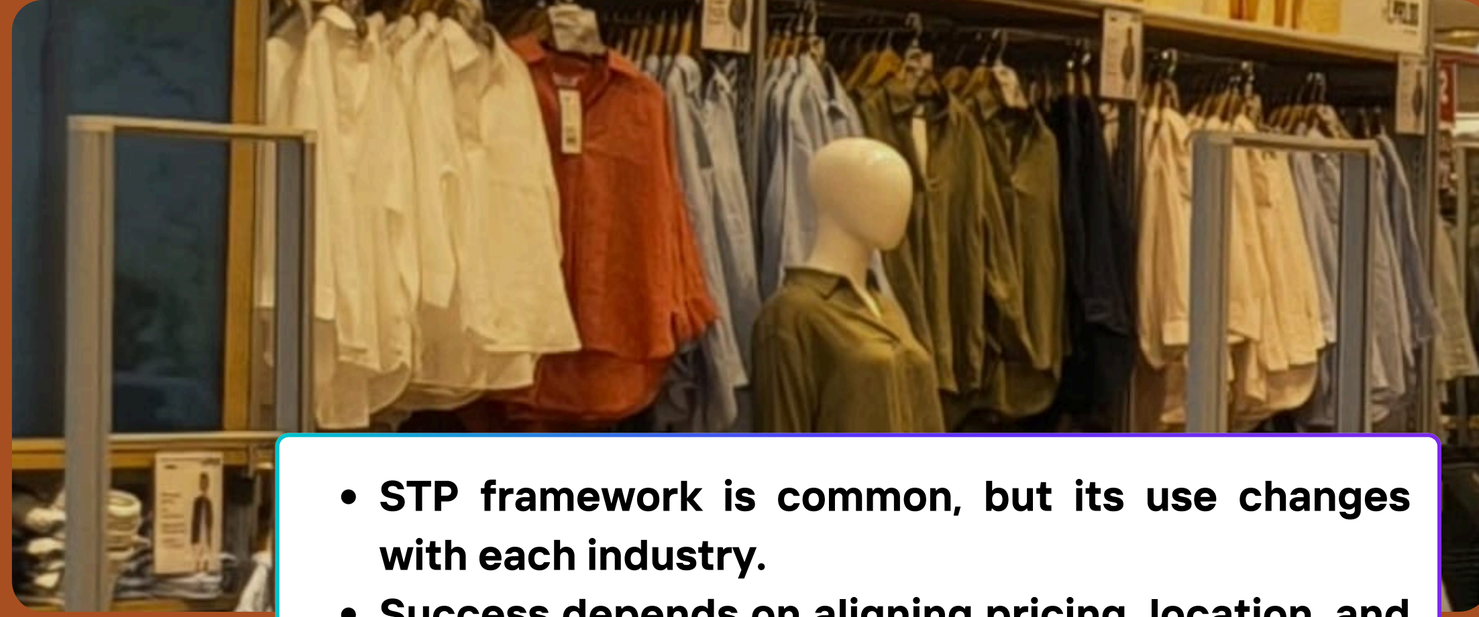

Age: Mainly 20–45 years.
Lifestyle: Tech lovers, working professionals, and modern urban families.
Income: Middle to higher income groups.

Core Value

Samsung delivers innovation through advanced tech
Ensures accessibility across price segments builds trust with strong customer satisfaction.

Comparative Insights & Reflection

- Uniqlo → Focuses on inclusivity & affordability, offering everyday clothing for all.
- Starbucks → Builds exclusivity & lifestyle appeal, giving a premium café experience to youth.
- Samsung → Balances innovation & accessibility, targeting aspirational premium customers.

- STP framework is common, but its use changes with each industry.
- Success depends on aligning pricing, location, and customer service with brand positioning.
- Mall visit gave us first-hand exposure to how global brands create unique identities in India.
